Gould-White: This name has been used for a contiguous group of properties that offer many trails and plenty of scope for exploration. Vernal pools surrounded by hilly woodland, and ledge outcrops lie in the center of this area. Old trees grow side by side with young stands of sweet birch. A number of brooks cross the land. The sights and sounds of wildlife such as deer and woodpeckers are present. A group of rocks has settled into a formation known as “The Cave” ①.

Gould Land: Purchased by the Town from H. Mitchell Gould in 1987.

White Gift: This 18-acre property was a gift to the Town by Harold and Betty White in 1993.

Wallie Land: The Town and Bolton Conservation Trust purchased this area from David Wallie in 1993.

Hapgood-Schecter Conservation Restriction: This is private property, but with a conservation restriction and a number of trail easements. It completes the area and provides a connection to West Berlin Rd.

McGourty Gift: A short trail leads across this stand-alone piece of land that was given to Bolton Conservation Trust by the McGourty family in 1994. The path passes rock outcrops and follows a brook to end at private land.
