Northwoods Area: Three parcels of land are included under the general name Northwoods. The Northwoods space itself is associated with a Farming and Open Space Residential Development (FOSPRD). The Sochalaski Conservation area was purchased by the Town, and the Levison area which stretches into Harvard was a gift to Bolton Conservation Trust. All the trail easements are owned by Bolton Conservation Trust. There are several private trails to nearby properties; these should be avoided.

The Zink Trail Easement: This easement was granted to Bolton Conservation Trust as part of the residential development of the Zink property. The path climbs gently north from Corn Rd. and follows a brook which is crossed eventually. There can be some wet patches and the bridge over the brook can be slippery. After passing a large boulder the trail turns right just before a log bench. It then continues uphill steeply to connect to the trails in the Northwoods area and conservation land in Harvard.

The Zink Sawmill land: This Town-owned land was once the location of a sawmill owned by the Zink family. There are still remnants of the industrial activity visible from the trail which is a useful connector from Sugar Rd. 1 to the parking area and the Zink Trail Easement on Corn Rd.

2 Log bench

3 Boulder field

Parking:

- Corn Rd. 2 cars. Do not block the driveway or mailbox. 42.453000, -71.580278
- Ledgewood Circle. 2 cars can be parked on the left hand shoulder where the road drops down to the circle. The trailhead is clearly marked. 42.458694, -71.594500

Suggested walks:

A loop can be made around Hazel, Warner Rd and the Levinson connection into Harvard.

Short: Follow the Zink Trail from Corn Rd. out to the log bench after the big boulder, have a break and return to Corn Rd. .75 miles

Short: Walk from Ledgewood Circle and explore the trail on Levison Land in Harvard. 1 mile

Medium: Out and back from Ledgewood Circle to the log bench. 2 miles

Medium: Use two cars. Park one at Corn Rd. and the other at the Ledgewood Circle. Walk between these points. Make it longer by out and back on the Zink Sawmill Trail. 1.75 miles

Bolton Loop Trail:

Crosses this area. Very long. 11 miles
