① Trail Head with Parking

Houghton Farm: This property is associated with a FOSPRD (Farming and Open Space Residential Development) area. Houses have been built on the lane at a steady rate over a number of years. It is named for members of the Houghton family many of whom lived nearby and whose ancestors had settled in Bolton during its earliest days in the late 17th century when it was still part of Lancaster. One of the most prominent was Joseph Houghton. In 1847 his land and cash donation to the town enabled the construction of the town's first High School. The building is now the "Houghton Building" in the center of town.

② Bridge crossing the Brook near the Trailhead

Trails: This is a very pleasing area for a quiet stroll in the woods on rolling terrain with some points of interest along the way. The main trail forms a "lollypop" shape with a number of side trails leading to private land and property owned by the New England Power company; please stay within the area shown on the map.

The trails and bridge on this land were built as part of an Eagle Scout project in 2013 by a member of Troop 1.

Parking: On the shoulder of Houghton Farm Lane next to the trail head sign. 2 cars. ① 42.447013, -71.591709.

Connections: A short walk along Houghton Farm Lane to Sugar Road leads to the Garrison House site and the nearby Old Town House Road (see map 4).

③ Stone Structure near the Trailhead

Suggested walks: All of the paths are worth a visit and with a total mileage 1.0 miles all of the area can be visited without too much effort in a fairly short time. The paths to the east of the old cart track that runs up the middle of the main loop have some good views of the nearby rocky outcrops and the small brook that runs below them. These paths are among the least popular and are quieter. These trails break away from the cart track near a large boulder. ⑤
