Fyfeshire: This 31-acre conservation area was a gift to the Town of Bolton by Helen L Plummer. The name is derived from the county in Scotland where her ancestors (the Fyfes) originated. The area contains some beautiful trails and picturesque sitting areas, the restored dam of an old button mill 1 and some pond side nature observation points. There is plenty of beaver activity and at various times of year the flora can be spectacular. There are several uncommon species such as white cedar, black gum and tupelo on the property. A new dam and bridge provide access to the southwestern side of the main pond. A bridge carries a trail over the marshy land on the northwestern side on a route that leads towards Clinton and avoids the traffic on the main road

Haynes-Wheeler: This 6.75 acre wooded area has a 0.25 mile trail from Sawyer Road to Wattaquaddock Hill Road. A few yards along the road towards Clinton there is a short connector that leads to the upper pond at Fyfeshire 2. The land was a gift to the town by Levi Wheeler in 1970. Levi had lived at his grandparents home on Sawyer Road in what is now the Schultz Farm.

Parking: Wattaquaddock Hill Road at the Fyfeshire entrance gate. 6 parallel parked cars.

Connections:

Haynes-Wheeler Trail and the trails along the north of Wattaquaddock Pond can be used by pedestrians to avoid the traffic when walking down Wattaquaddock Hill Road.

Viewing:

Trails along the side of Wattaquaddock Pond give some excellent opportunities for photography.

Suggested walks:

Short: a 300 yard circuit of the upper pond

Medium: Out and back along the various trails next to or near Wattaquaddock Pond

Long: a 2.5 mile loop from the Fyfeshire gate up to Peach Hill Road, turn left at Sawyer Road and return to the start along the Haynes-Wheeler Trail
