Annie Moore Land: This 90-acre conservation area located just off Annie Moore Rd. contains a mix of upland forest, wetlands, and an old orchard. Origins of the name Annie Moore are unknown, but people with the name Moore were living on the Stow line at some point although no-one in this family was called Ann or Annie. It's been speculated that the area takes its name after the first Irish immigrant through Ellis Island. The property was donated to the Town by J. D. Sargent, C. Slade and K. McLure. The Annie Moore Rd. trailhead is located on the east side, approximately 1000' past the sharp bend in the road. The trail follows a rock wall as it ventures into the forest. An optional loop trail rejoins the main path as it descends near the old orchard. The main path crosses a wet area via a bridge and then ascends to meet a second loop trail which extends the walk with a short descent, then back up a short slope to meet the main trail again. The path then reaches Bolton/Stow P junction where it crosses an unpaved, and partially rock-wall lined extension of Annie Moore Rd. The trail then follows the Town line which is also a county line and is marked with occasional low-lying stone posts that may be seen just off the path. The trail continues downhill to Bolton Woods Way. Hikers that venture along Old Bolton Rd. via Bolton Woods Way and Route 117 can spot an old natural stone marker at Old Bolton Rd. with "B" on one side and "S" on the other for the Bolton/Stow line.

Parking:

- Annie Moore Rd., 1-2 cars on the roadway shoulder next to the trailhead.
42.428528, -71.563139
- Bolton Woods Way Trailhead, 1-2 cars.
42.439559, -71.556966

Suggested walks:

Out and back from either end, but adding variation by taking the loop trails in one direction, but not in the other.

Loop. Start at either the Annie Moore cul-de-sac or the Annie Moore Rd. trailhead. Make a loop through the junction with the unpaved extension to Annie Moore Rd. P and then return to the starting point. This can be extended by an out and back walk to the kiosk at the Bolton Woods Way trailhead.
