④ Upper and Lower Trail junction

Ballville Trails: A Neighborhood called Ballville appeared on a map in 1998. Families called Ball lived in this area before 1790. In 1831 two families named Ball were living next to each other on Ballville Rd. This part of town is known by most people as the location of The International Golf course ②, but some of the land used for golf was the location of the Bolton Airport (1932-1952).

The conservation area was created as part of the Oak Trail FOSPRD project in 2008.

The trail passes a large meadow ① where wildlife can often be seen. After a sharp right turn the path enters a valley created by North Brook where there is more wildlife. It then meanders gently upwards near the southern part of the housing development and eventually divides into upper and lower paths. Both paths have interests. The upper route passes close to a “rock cave” near a very steep section and the lower route follows an old track before turning into the woods. All routes merge to a path parallel the road which leads back to Oak Trail.

Access: From Ballville Rd. near the turning into the housing development: 42.436445, -71.640375 (251-267 Ballville Rd.), also 0.1 miles south along the road at the trailhead: 42.435278, 71.641389 (263 Ballville Rd). More access is possible 0.5 miles further south where the trail crosses a track close at 42.430738, -71.643489.

Connections: Wilder Farm (map14) trails via an out and back walk along Wilder Rd., stopping at the site of Hillside Church along the way.

Taggart (map17) can be accessed by taking a left turn at the Hillside Church site and walking south on Wilder Road, Sand Road will be encountered on the right which connects to the soccer Fields and the Taggart trails.

Fyfeshire (map15) via a 1.3 mile walk south along Ballville Rd.

Suggested walks: A complete loop of the of the Oak Trail Circuit
